Abstract:

In the present scenario our youngsters are more interested and spending more time in social media by using various platforms like Whatsapp, Facebook, Twitter etc. media is some way source of information where present things are updated, were students are gradually gaining the knowledge. As we are aware that India is the youngest country in the world. As due to competition era, exam oriented system they are isolated from the real world. Hence the present study is to know the awareness among the students of present political issues.

Keywords: Social media, Political awareness, Socialization

Introduction:

As we are proud to be the citizen of India, every Indians should be aware of the progress of the country and present political scenario. As per the article 326 of Indian Constitution every individual who attains the age of 18 years is a responsible citizen of Indian. After Independence in the constitution this age was 21 years which was reduced to 18 years after 61th Constitutional Amendment Act of 1988 (Arpit L. Patadiya. 2020).

Undergraduate students who are going to be the citizen of India should be aware of the National progress and their contribution in the world in regard to economic and political matter. Students should also be aware of the present Prime Minister, Chief Minister and other designated ministers, and implementation work carried by respective ministers for the development of the nation. In regard to the above students have many source of information available with the new generation, but whether this source is used for academic and knowledge is the main aim of the studies.

Literature survey:

Lazarsfeld F.Poul (1948) in his work, "The people's choice" says that, the most common finding in the field of political behaviour is that, higher the income groups or socio-economic status, political awareness and political participation was higher. He also finds out that, people of the same general socioeconomic status have the same political attitudes. The finding of L. F. Poul is very much similar to the features of political participation in the field. It helped the researcher to match the attitude of the same socio-economic status people in the area.

Pandhya K. S. and Choudhary S. (1980) study revealed that students in Orissa, higher the grade and age, greater the political awareness. Boys were more politically aware than girls and higher the socio economic status of the family greater is the political awareness. K.S.Pandhya studied only political awareness of the students in Orissa where as socioeconomic status of the family was influential in Koppal district in determining the political awareness level. However, in adults, as they grow old, they lack interest in politics and their level of political awareness decreases.

Methodology:

The present work was carried out among undergraduate students, a total of 100 students have been selected as sample from various department that Political Sciences, Economics, History, Social Science, Education, English, Kannada and Hindi (II Semester) during the academic year 2021-2021. The primary data collection method was used for study. A structured questionnaire has been developed for data collection.
